

Total Package: Vision

Monday

John 10:10

Jesus reminds us why He came to earth to be with us, so that we may have an abundant life. We talked this weekend about your “why?”. Take some time today to reflect again on that question. In your morning quiet time, take this question with you in your conversation with God.

Tuesday

Exodus 3:1-6

God appears to Moses in the midst of Moses’ chaos. The vision that God laid out for Moses dealt directly with Moses’ passion. As you think through God’s vision for your life, think through the things that you are passionate about. Journal today about the things that inspire you, or the things that break your heart. God’s vision for you will be found there.

Wednesday

Exodus 1

For many of us, we are more primed to listen for God’s voice when we find ourselves in crisis, or tragedy, or in desperate need. Sometimes, however, we hear the voice of God speaking to us because of someone else’s desperate need. Begin your day by asking God to make you aware of those in need around you. Let your vision for today just be to look for and help someone else in need.

Thursday

Exodus 14

We talked this weekend about how excuses can get in the way of vision. The Israelites certainly had an excuse as they saw an unforgiving Red Sea ahead of them and a charging army behind them. However, just like for the Israelites, God has a plan for our vision that works through our excuses. What excuses do you find yourself using often that keep you from growing?

Friday

Numbers 13

Israel’s wandering in the desert was fueled by bad advice from ten of the spies Moses sent in to Canaan. Only two spies came back with a helpful word. One of God’s graces is to give us wisdom through relationships, but we need the discernment on who to listen to and who not to listen to. Who are the people that you trust to speak into your life?

Saturday

Matthew 28

As you read through Matthew 28, take time to reflect on the resurrection that we celebrated only two weeks ago. Do you still feel the same excitement, the same energy about the resurrection today as you did two weeks ago? As you think about the possibility of your vision, reflect on the impossibility of the resurrection.

Sunday

Psalms 150

The possibilities of each day are endless. We serve a God greater than all the darkness in the world. Make sure that part of your vision involves celebrating and worshiping in community. As you prepare for worship today, think about your vision and where you are going. Come to worship ready to celebrate the resurrection, as well as where God is leading you and the community.
